PROVISIONAL "KICK-OFF" KICKS INTO HIGH GEAR

Provisional Chair Jessica Rosen welcomes the Provisional Class to the JLP!

By Regina Raiford Babcock

Over cups of coffee and scrumptious scones at the elegant Loews Philadelphia Hotel, 78 new members joined the JLP for the Provisional Kick Off on September 30th. "I am so excited by this provisional year. It is a really big group," said Member Advisor Carol Rose. Jess Rosen, Member Chair, led the kickoff with an enthusiastic welcome. "The League is great for you at whatever your stage of life," Rosen explained.

Each board member present described her own personal history with the Junior League and how the League enhanced her life. "The League calls on you to do things you never thought you could do," said Susan Mostek, President-Elect. From fundraising to community projects, the board introduced the newest members to the Junior League of Philadelphia's extensive community service history as well as its current goals to promote volunteerism.

The Provisionals joined the League for many different reasons, but each member described a desire to support the community.

"I just moved to Philadelphia, and I joined the Junior League to make friends and do something non-school related," joked Allison Sydlaske, Provisional member. Currently a student at Wharton Business School, Sydlaske was impressed by the League's friendliness and enthusiasm.

Provisional Liz Downey, an attorney from Boston, is hoping to meet new people. "I like how organized the Junior League is," said Downey. Heather Coupe, another Provisional who also happens to be a stay-at-home mom, added, "I thought a long time about joining the League. I am very excited that I decided to join now."

Proving that the JLP attracts women of varying ages and backgrounds, Maria Crossin, a tax accountant and recent college graduate explained, "I just got out of college, and

I am looking forward to being a member. I will definitely get everything I want out of it." Fellow Provisional, Erika Speed, an event-marketing representative, stated,

"I heard a lot about the Junior League from friends. Now I am going to be a part of it."

As the event drew to a close, Rosen encouraged new members to reach out to their member advisors and board members in addition to connecting with each other by joining Yahoo Groups. The Provisional Class

PRESIDENT'S PERSPECTIVE

By Kara
Goodchild

Recently, I attended a dinner with a large group of friends who are also my husband's colleagues. Although not an official work event, those assembled offered a toast to the firm. Lest you get an image of John Grisham's The Firm, the toast was not a pledge of loyalty or a promotion of the firm above others. The toast acknowledged the firm as the connection between everyone there and recognized that the firm must be a special place to have attracted so many people who are not merely coworkers, but also good friends. It struck me that the Junior League of Philadelphia also deserves such a toast.

I have encountered some of the most impressive, kind, and supportive women through my years in the Junior League. I met most of these women by serving on a committee with them. The friendships often began by a simple invitation that we grab a bite to eat before a meeting or a drink afterwards. Even after moving on to different committees, we continued gathering for dinner. Not all of these women remained in the League, but our friendships still flourished.

The high caliber of Junior League women is not limited to the JLP. I have been fortunate to meet Junior League members from around the country at various Junior League trainings. Not surprisingly, I have become fast friends with these women as well. While we share the bond of holding the same position in Leagues across the country, we share a greater kinship that will last beyond the term of our respective presidencies.

My experience is not unique. Talk to sustainers and you will hear stories of decade's long friendships with other Leaguers. Actives and Provisionals also have abundant tales of friendship to share. Numerous women discovered the Junior League to be filled with like-minded, intelligent women who not only make great committee members, but also make excellent friends.

The quality of the women who belong to the JLP is a testament to the organization itself. Perhaps the focus on lifetime membership and multi-year commitments to projects enables us to not only improve our communities, but also to forge strong bonds in the process. Whatever the reason, there must be something special about an organization that consistently attracts a group of women who together accomplish so many inspiring things.

So the next time you are meeting a group of your JLP friends for dinner or a drink, please raise your glass to the JLP and say thanks for bringing us together.

Kara H. Goodchild

THE MAIN LINE CLOSET

By Patty Franks

The fall has flown by. Already this year we outfitted returning college students for their apartments and their closets, participated in the Ardmore-Bryn Mawr First Friday Celebration, and dressed many ghosts, goblins, and princesses. This month, the Main Line Closet is gearing up for the holiday season.

Everyone should stop by and see our display windows, which are filled with our "wares" and beautifully accented by the two lovely screens donated by Bobbie Cameron and adorned under the direction of Marcie Reber. We truly appreciate the help the Sustainers give us, not only in dropping off quota, but also in their continued volunteering for shifts and decorating the store. It is wonderful that they continue to show interest in the shop after their active duties are completed.

The shop continues to be extremely busy throughout the winter. Please try to do your shifts before the Spring. Please remember that the amount of money the shop makes for the JLP outreach is directly related to the quality of your donations.

As a member of the Junior League of Philadelphia, we welcome your interest in and inquiries regarding the League's financial statements.

You should submit your questions or comments concerning budget allocations of our monetary resources either before or during the 'budget season,' which begins in December and continues through February.

Prior to the annual April voting meeting, you will receive the budget in your voting packet. Please read these documents carefully.

During the voting meeting, you will have an opportunity to either approve or reject the budget we present to the membership. After the voting meeting, you will then receive your dues notice for the upcoming League year.

In addition to questions regarding monetary allocations for the future, we are also available to answer your questions concerning any portion of the financials or the current year's budget.

For your convenience, we posted the past five year of profit and loss information in a file on the financial page of the JLP web site. The report outlines our expenditures as they relate to the operation of the Main Line Closet, our community programs, fixed costs, membership programs, and other expenses. You can also find an executive summary (containing a few graphs) if you do not need the level of detail provided in the full report.

NOMINATING

Are you interested in leading a JLP committee, a council, or even the entire League at some point in your Junior League career? The Nominating Committee would like to share with you some characteristics that have proven invaluable when holding a leadership position in the JLP.

COMMITMENT to the JLP and to anyone who relies on you for information, or to get things accomplished. We are all busy in our day-to-day lives, but we must realize that, once we commit to being a leader, we must follow through in all aspects.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS are key to being a great leader. Both verbal and written communication is usually a big part of any leader's job, whether it is running your committee meeting, or addressing the entire league at a General Membership meeting.

MOTIVATION to keep working, even in the face of anxiety. Sometimes things do not always go as planned and you need to forge ahead. Motivation is also an important skill to impart to others – it can be contagious throughout your team if you can stay motivated and energetic about what you do!

DEDICATION to our mission, our processes, and to our members. If you truly believe in what we do and what we stand for, this should come easy!

OPEN MIND toward change and new ideas. This is how the JLP learns, grows, and improves. We should all look for newer, better ways to do things and to accept the change it brings. Leaders often times need to help others accept that change, too.

SENSE OF HUMOR to have fun, laugh with others, and enjoy the ride!

Obviously, there are many other traits that make a great leader. When Nominating places leaders in the JLP, we consider these personal leadership characteristics in each candidate as input to our decision.

If you feel you have some, or all, of these characteristics and are interested in using them to lead the JLP, please make sure to fill out a Nominating Leadership Survey to let us know your interests. Or, call a Nominating Committee member today!

DEVELOPMENT

Are you interesting in shaping the JLP's future?

Any member of the JLP can submit an idea for a new community project by completing a Project Proposal Form. You can obtain this form by emailing debbookstaber@yahoo.com. The Project Research and Development Committee will review all project ideas. The Committee will then select some proposed projects to research further and present to the JLP Board at the Project Advisory Committee (PAC) meetings in November, January, and February respectively.

The Project Advisory Committee includes the President, President-Elect, Development Council Director, Project Research and Development Chair, Community Project Council Directors, Placement Committee Chairs, Finance Committee liaison and two members-at-large selected by the nominating committee.

PAC will work with the PRD committee to evaluate each project utilizing criteria designed to ensure that JLP volunteer and financial resources are allocated in a way that maximizes our community impact.

Projects approved by PAC will be voted on by the JLP membership at the Annual Voting Meeting. A project may be approved by the membership for a period of up to three years at one time.

Fall Membership Meeting

Jerry Sorkin, an expert on oriental rugs and the cultures that produce them spoke at the September 27th Membership Meeting at the Pond Restaurant in Radnor. This meeting, to which 89 sustainers and friends attended, was superbly organized by Barbara Gord and Phyllis Scott. Sorkin's topic was "Oriental Rugs-Beyond the Surface" His fascinating talk stressed that these cultures are first and foremost based on clan and tribe. To try to impose nationalism and/or democracy on them is a very daunting, if not impossible task. He also spoke on the symbolism used in rugs and that even if one pattern was copied by another tribe it would be interpreted differently using their own unique weaving structure.

The official JUNIOR LEAGUE ORGANIZER is now available. Not only is it a great weekly calendar, it also provides places to store contacts, and serves as a family and volunteer organizer. You can purchase your copy at the Main Line Closet for $15.00

Sustainer News

By Pat Supplee

Dear Sustainers,

It was my pleasure to be on the Celebration Committee of the Water Works. This celebration took place at the Water Works on September 10th. Over 700 Philadelphians were present to enjoy the current renovations to the South Garden, the last remaining piece of the Water Works site to be completed.

Susan Myers and over 60 Junior League members and guests were present to celebrate many years of Junior League involvement with the Water Works. The restoration of this site began as a Junior League project in the early 1970's, as the League prepared to honor the country's bicentennial. For over 20 years, Susan Myers, her committee, and the entire League committed funds and many hours of volunteer work to keep this project afloat. Susan carried her famous placemat of the Water Works, a symbol of the project, and her message of the importance of this site to anyone who would listen. Thanks to Pam Crutchfield, Sustainer chair-elect, the famous placemat attended at this celebration and was given back to Susan. Many of her Water Works Restoration Committee was present, including Virginia Maloney, Cordie Clement, Charlotte DeSerio, Pam Crutchfield, Phyllis Scott, Margy Conlon, and Marilyn Sprague.

The Water Works restoration project began with Susan and the League. Ernesta Ballard, Fairmount Park Commissioner, contributed greatly to the effort and raised large amounts of money to bring the project near completion. After Susan Myers' early efforts that raised millions for the project, Susan Myers with the League, together with the Society of Engineers, restored the Frederic Graff Memorial Fountain, one of Susan Myers' final gifts to the Water Works. In commemoration of her untiring efforts and of a Junior League Project, the League has donated a grant of $20,000 to aid in the completion of the South Garden.

Do not miss the opportunity to visit the Water Works and marvel at this beautiful part of Philadelphia's past and present. Eat at the Water Works Restaurant, which is truly wonderful. Walk up the newly restored cliff paths toward the Art Museum. Enjoy the restored fountain, central to the South Garden. Look for the eagle atop the gazebo toward the river, which was another gift of the monies raised by Susan Myers and the League. Watch for the completion of the South Garden, and feel the pride of being a member of an organization that helped retain and gloriously restore a unique treasure.

If you missed a chance to contribute toward this final stage, you can still do so through the Fairmount Park Conservancy (215-988-9334), 1617 JFK Boulevard, Suite 1670, Philadelphia PA 19103. Mention Susan Myers and the Junior League.*

*Much of the historical information in this letter was supplied by Marilyn Sprague.
